

History Lesson

Give your students 10 seconds to grab two items: one for their left hand and one for their right hand. It helps to do a dramatic countdown to build up anticipation.

Once everyone has their items, explain that you've all gathered for the Annual Conference on Human Innovation. The two items that they hold in their hands represent an incredible innovation!

The object in their left hand somehow evolved into the object in their right hand.

The students are to create a story in which they explain how the object in their left hand evolved into the object in their right hand.

Go around the room (or virtual room) and have students deliver this "history lesson" to the class. The more outrageous, the better!
